

Evrydiki Tseliou

Evrydiki Tseliou works for the Council of Europe's gender equality division since 2017. She has also worked for the European Parliament (Brussels), the Representation of the European Commission to Greece, for the Hellenic Parliament as well as for the political foundation K. Karamanlis Institute for Democracy. She has also participated in European projects as scientific/research associate of the Institute of European Integration and Policy of the University of Athens. Her research and her publications' interests focus on the issues of EU democracy and the public opinion, the institutional and the political context of the EU as well as on the women's rights, the gender stereotypes and the gender mainstreaming in EU policies and in the Council of Europe's policies. Evrydiki Tseliou holds an MA on European Policies (Master en études européennes à finalité politique with distinction) from the Université Libre de Bruxelles (ULB) and a BA on Political Science and Public Administration from the University of Athens. She is fluent in English and in French and she has a good knowledge of Spanish.

Participation in other associations

Member of the Council of Europe's Young Staff Member's group

Board member of the Greek community of Alsace

Publications

In Greek

Tseliou E, "Policies for the reconciliation of work and family/private life" (p.p.107135) in Alipranti-Maratou Laura, Katsis Athanasios, Papadimitriou Pyrros, Work-Life (im)balance: A quantitative research in Greece during crisis, Athens. KMOP, 2016

Alipranti L., Karagiannopoulou C, Tseliou E., Fereti E., "A guide on how to combat gender stereotypes in mass media", Greek League for Women's Rights, Athens, 2015

In English

Tseliou E, "Policies for the reconciliation of work and family/private life" (p.p.107135) in Alipranti-Maratou Laura, Katsis Athanasios, Papadimitriou Pyrros, Work-Life (im)balance: A quantitative research in Greece during crisis, Athens. KMOP, 2016