

Elpida Vogli

Areas of Expertise:

Citizenship, nationalism, nation/state-building, diaspora policies, social history, history and historiography

Elpida Vogli has a Ph.D from the department of History at the AUTH (Aristotle University of Thessaloniki) since 2003. She has taught Greek and European History at the department of Journalism and Mass Media at the AUTH, the Hellenic Open University, and has also been a research associate at ELIA (Hellenic Literature and Historical Archive). She is currently an Associate Professor of Modern Greek History at the Department of History and Ethnology, School of Classics and Humanities Studies, at the DUTH (Democritus University of Thrace).

Her research interests involve issues of citizenship, national and gender identities, nationalism, diaspora policies, social and political rights, and historiography. She is also interested in political and social history with an emphasis on the history of the institution of family. She is the author of four books (in Greek): What a Historian should know about his/her Science and Profession? ebook Kallipos: Hellenic Academic Books, 2015 [available at: <https://repository.kallipos.gr/handle/11419/3821>]; Metaxa, the Real Story: The Development of a Greek Family Industry (Athens: Livanis, 2010); "Greek by descent": National Identity and Citizenship in Modern Greece, 1821-1844 (Heraklion: Crete University Press, 2007); Works and the Days of Greek Families, 1750-1940 (Athens: ELIA/MIET, 2005). [See her Curriculum Vitae at her websites mentioned above].