

Lambros Moutsos

Moutsos Lambros is a student at the University of Peloponnese and studies in the Department of Political Science and International Relations. In 2016 he has carried out his traineeship at the Embassy of Albania in Athens at the department of International Relations, while in 2018 he was employed by the Institute of Democracy, Konstantinos Karamanlis, as part of the PEDIS undergraduate student's traineeship program. He has participated in ten simulations from which he has won awards at the Hellenic Air Force Academy 2017 (AWARD) and the Member of the European Parliament in EUropa.S. 2019 (HONORARY MENTION). While at the same time he has participated in twenty conferences in some of which he has volunteered for secretarial support. He is also in charge of public relations at the JEF federalists Athens-Piraeus. His mother tongue is Albanian and Greek, while in foreign languages he speaks English. In July 2019 he won a scholarship from the Latsis Foundation and participated in Olympia Summer Academy the cycle B about Terrorism and European Security.